THE CAREFUL ELEPHANT.

His Bump of Caution Seems to Be Remarkably Well Developed.

The author of "From Jungle to Zoo," in explaining the difficulties of transporting wild animals by rail, gives a striking example of the elephant's cautiousness:

"The keepers generally place a heavy platform from the door of the truck to the ground, but few elephants will venture on it. In one case the men sent in a trained elephant first in the hope that the newly captured elephant would follow. The new elephant stopped dead, however, threw up his trunk and made it evident that he would go no farther.

"They offered him all kinds of food and addressed him with encouraging words; they led the trained elephant out and then in again with a rush, in the hope that the other would follow in the excitement of the moment. But it all had no effect whatever; there the bumpy one stood, waving his trunk and glancing from left to right and then from right to left with his little crafty eyes.

"At length after two hours of hard work, when the men were exhausted and streaming with perspiration, the elephant suddenly lowered his trunk, seized the inclined platform and threw it away. Then, lifting up first one huge foot and then another, he walked quietly into the truck and settled down at once to a good meal."

THE SLEEP OF LIFE

We talk about sleep of death. How much deeper, how much sadder, is the sleep of life—the unresponsive heart, the unawakened mind, the hand palsied by lack of will to do!

His Excuse.
"Why did you snatch this lady's purse?"

"My wife told me when I left home in the morning to get her a recipe for a new salad dressing, and I thought sure I'd find one in her pocketbook, judge."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Enlarged Glands.
When children have enlarged glands in the neck or elsewhere they should always be placed under the care of a physician. Very often well meaning mothers make local applications that do more harm than good because they hasten the softening that is so much to be dreaded. What is true of applications is also true of handling or rubbing. All tuberculous processes and glandular swellings should be kept as quiet as possible. For that reason if the swelling occurs on some part of the body where there is much movement, such as the groin, the patient should either remain in bed or the part affected should be made immovable by means of splints and bandages. An open air life and nourishing food are essential. For everything possible must be done to maintain the general health. The enemy as yet has gained only a local footing. The first must be to prevent the disease from becoming general and constitutional.

If we furnish an inferior motor—but everything else of good quality—what value would your car have?

If we furnished a good motor, but a poor transmission, would you be any better off?

And then again, suppose we equipped a car with a good motor and transmission, but a poor clutch, wouldn't your car still be weak?

In the Chevrolet, the motor, clutch, transmission, and rear axle system must be true—true to each other—and each must be a perfect mechanical unit.

The Chevrolet is true all the way through.
